Democrats plan 16-cent gas tax

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats begin the task of combining their various energy conservation proposals in an effort to produce a single alternative to President Ford's program by the end of the week.

Proposals formulated by Democratic task forces from House and Senate feature higher gasoline taxes. House Majority Leader Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., said Monday that the tax hike would reach 16 cents per gallon in two years under the proposal formulated by the House Democratic group. Added to the present federal tax of four cents a gallon, this would bring the total federal levy to 20 cents a gallon.

Members of the two task forces meet today for the first time to iron out differences between their proposed programs. At the same time, they were preparing to override Ford's promised veto of a bill that delays the $3-a-barrel oil tariff, a key ingredient of his program.

O'Neill said the House Democratic program would impose import quotas and retail gasoline taxes gradually over a two-year period, rebate some of those taxes, and provide incentives to purchase economy autos and insulate homes.

The Senate program, as recently described by Sen. John O. Pastore, D-R.I., would gradually impose a gasoline tax when the unemployment rate subsides, encourage the purchase of economy autos and provide incentives to insulate buildings.

Democrats in Congress say their programs share Ford's goal of energy conservation but also take into account the national economic slump. They generally assert that Ford's program of cutting energy use by driving up its price would aggravate the recession.

Pastore, chairman of the Senate energy task force, and Rep. James Wright, D-Tex., chairman of the House counterpart, met Saturday and their staffs worked through the weekend in an effort to put the programs in final form.

In a speech Monday to the Women's National Democratic Club, O'Neill said the final recommendations of Wright's task force are:

—A quota on oil imports, cutting back daily imports by 350,000 barrels this year, 650,000 barrels in 1976 and 1 million barrels in 1977. The quotas would be put up for bids from oil-producing countries in hopes competition will bring down the price.

—A mandatory allocation system for gasoline, down to the service station levels, with an aim of cutting back consumption by 5 per cent nationally.

—A gasoline tax, with a rebate annually on taxes on essential consumption, of 8 cents per gallon this year, 12 cents in 1976 and 16 cents in 1977.

O'Neill said the average family might be assumed to need an average of 40 gallons of gasoline a month for essential commuting and shopping and would be rebated the tax on that amount.

The families would bear the cost of the tax on nonessential driving.

—A rebate-penalty plan on new cars to give buyers incentives to shop around for the models with the best

During City Council meeting

Income tax enactment procedures to be eyed

Procedures for enacting a city income tax will be reviewed by members of Washington C. H. City Council at the regular semi-monthly meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the City Office Building.

City Council members last week announced their plans to place into effect a one per cent income tax in an attempt to remedy the city's gloomy financial situation.

THE ONE per cent income tax, scheduled to become effective April 1, is being imposed in an attempt to relieve a minimal $233,000 deficit in the 1975 general fund budget.

The procedures for enacting the income tax will be reviewed by Council members during the city manager's report.

Two pieces of emergency legislation will also be considered by City Council members during the meeting.

Council will consider an emergency ordinance authorizing the city manager to enter into a contract for police professional liability insurance with Wilson, McBride and Co. City Manager Dan Wolford will review the renewal of liability insurance for the police department during the city manager's report.

An emergency ordinance authorizing a district zoning change will also be considered by Council members. The ordinance, if approved, will authorize the rezoning from B-1 (neighborhood business district) and B-2 (downtown or intermediate business district) to B-3 (general business district) of two parcels of land containing 2.776 acres situated between Fayette Memorial Hospital and a parcel of land owned by Edwin N. Loving on the southwest side, and a parcel owned by Developers Diversified, Inc. on the northeast side, fronting 215.89 feet on CCC Highway-E.

The application for the zoning change has been submitted by Carroll Halliday, Inc., 907 Columbus Ave. A public hearing on the zoning change will be held at the beginning at the regular City Council meeting.

A PUBLIC hearing designed to discuss the community development block grant fund being applied for by the city under the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 will also be held prior to the regular Council business.

The city has submitted an application for approximately $300,000 to fund proposed community development projects during 1975.

Wolford said a status report on persons employed under the Comprehensive Employment Training Act will also be presented at the meeting.

camera out the window of his van on his way home from photographing an accident. The weatherman predicts more such art tonight and Wednesday and says temperatures will be low enough to preserve it for awhile, which is quite a switch from the 3.43 inches of rain Monday and a high of 60 degrees.

School boosts said not enough

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A two-year budget providing a 30 per cent increase for higher education is not enough, four university presidents have told a legislative subcommittee.

The presidents of Ohio State, Cleveland State, Bowling Green and Central State expressed concern that the $797 million general subsidy portion of the $1.023 billion Democratic budget bill would not meet minimum continuation levels.

However, the chairman of the education section of the House Finance Committee, Robert Jaskulski, D-11 Garfield Heights, was unmoved. "They're going to have to look among themselves as to where they can hold the line," he said following the three and a half hour hearing Monday.

Dr. James A. Norton, chancellor of the Board of Regents, told the committee last week the eight per cent increase in the general subsidy was $11.7 million below a stay-even level.

Hollis A. Moore, president of Bowling Green, said instructional grants should be increased "by at least the 9.5 per cent in 1975-76 and 9 per cent in 1976-77 as recommended by the chancellor and not the 8 per cent incorporated in the bill."

The president of Cleveland State, Walter Waetjen, went further. "Our quality will slip if we do not receive a minimum 11 per cent," he said, "and that would be a continuation budget."

Moore, who is chairman of the Inter-University Council, also asked that the $50 ceiling on student general fees, established in 1968, be increased to at least $75.

"The present limit on the general fee must be lifted," he said. "Programs and services financed in our several universities by this fee have experienced an inflationary cost no different from other aspects of the universities."

Dr. Harold Enarson, president of Ohio State, told the legislators the "public image of higher education is that it faces stable, even declining enrollments; and that all we need is the same money to do next year what we did the year before."

"Not so," he insisted, "OSU has 4.5 per cent — 4,000 — more students this biennium than last."

Coffee Break . .

THE FAYETTE County auditor's office has announced books will be open until April 30 for county residents to file 1975 personal property taxes.

MRS. ZORA GRUBBS would like to thank the many people who have assisted in the distribution of the book of poems written by her late husband, Frank.

In less than two months the book, "Hey What's the Score," has scored 1,000 copies with area residents.

Many organizations and individuals have contributed greatly to the successful sale of the publication. Mrs. Grubbs would like to thank these groups, especially the Good Hope Lions Club and the Fayette Street Grocery.

The Lions Club members took it upon themselves to assist her in the early stages, and the grocery has sold more than 300 copies during the past three weeks.

"I would put dollars for instructional subsidies ahead of dollar for non-credit course," Enarson said when pressed on his budgetary priorities.

For new headquarters

VFW post acquires restaurant property

The Veterans of Foreign Wars Post No. 3762, headquartered at 110½ S. Fayette St., has purchased the former Caldwell Restaurant property at 335 N. Water St. and the 34,000 square foot lot on which the building is situated.

The former restaurant property, which fronts on Water Street for 100 feet, will become the site of a new VFW post. Members plan to relocate into the new headquarters within a year. The relocation will be the fourth in 35 years for the VFW post.

BIDS ARE now being accepted by the VFW post for a 2,400-square foot building, and at least three bids are expected to be received by the end of the week, according to post commander Harold Wagner.

Edgar Bandy, club manager, said the post has been housed in its present home, the Passmore building, since 1949. Prior to that time it had been located above the G.C. Murphy Co. store on E. Court Street.

Chartered in 1940 with 25 members, the post found its first home in the former Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic hall above the Downtown Drug Co. This location provided a meeting place but had no canteen facilities. The move above G.C. Murphy's came in 1946 and provided lounge and recreational space.

Although details of the new structure are not yet available, it will offer the membership, which has grown to 200 persons, more modern facilities and additional space. The present restaurant building will be razed to make room for the new facility. Bandy said the post is accepting bids on both steel and cement block construction. Completion is expected by late fall, and members hope to hold their annual Christmas party at the Water Street address.

Mrs. Myrl Caldwell, widow of Edward Caldwell, sold the property after owning the restaurant operation for nearly 55 years. The establishment opened in 1920 next door to the present site. It moved to the present building in 1941.

MRS. CALDWELL believes that it was the oldest one-owner restaurant in the Washington C.H. area when it closed in September. She and her husband had worked continuously in the restaurant since it opened. Mrs. Caldwell said she often worked as many as 18 hours a day, and worked the afternoon trick the day it closed. She said both her daughters, Mrs. Emily Bailey and Mrs. Marjorie Rea, of Good Hope, had often assisted in the restaurant operation.

Although she just celebrated a birthday, Mrs. Caldwell said she would keep her age a secret. When asked her plans for the future, she said, "I guess it's safe to say I'm too old to be changing businesses." She said it was finally time to retire and relax, noting that she was still in excellent health.

Theodore Wilburn, quartermaster of the VFW post, was active in the arrangement of the sale which was handled by Harold Gorman, of Mac Dews Real Estate.

Senate panel studying 25th Amendment revision

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Senate panel is studying whether to recommend revision of the 25th Amendment to the Constitution which guided Gerald R. Ford to the White House and Nelson A. Rockefeller to the vice presidency.

A variety of plans are being offered to amend the presidential succession process. But Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., author of the 25th Amendment, says it has proved itself and should be kept intact.

Bayh's constitutional amendments subcommittee is opening hearings on the question today. The hearings are designed to weigh the worth of the amendment following its first applications. Any changes to the amendment would have to be approved by two-thirds of the House and Senate and ratified by three-fourths of the states.

Ford was the first vice president and the first president to gain those offices through the amendment. Rockefeller was the second vice president to win the office through the amendment.

Ford has criticized the amendment's application in Rockefeller's case, saying it took too long to work and urged that it be changed to set a time limit on the process.

One witness, Sen. William D. Hathaway, D-Maine, said in a prepared statement today that the amendment should be changed to provide a special national election in the event that both the elected president and the elected vice president leave office.

That was the situation that prevailed after the resignation of President Richard M. Nixon and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew.

Hathaway said that if his approach is adopted, the highest ranking officer of the House of Representatives of the same party as the outgoing president should serve as acting president until such an election is held.

That officer — either the speaker of the House or the minority leader — would become president in his own right if the outgoing president's term had less than three years to run, Hathaway said.

Bayh contended that the 25th Amendment eased "the removal of a president who had totally lost the respect and the confidence of the American people."

Oil cartel meets, freezes prices

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — The 13-nation oil cartel met today to discuss proposals designed to minimize the loss of revenue due to the declining value of the dollar and the reduced demand for oil. But Iran's delegate said he would oppose a price increase.

"We have already decided to freeze the prices until the end of September, and we are not going back on that promise," said Iranian Interior Minister Jamshid Amouzegar.

Since the members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are paid for their oil in dollars, Kuwait proposed that they increase their prices in proportion to the decline in the value of the dollar in the five strongest European currencies and the Japanese yen.

Algeria and Iraq proposed scrapping the dollar for oil payments and using a stronger but as yet unspecified single currency.

Iran is still plugging its proposal to tie the price of oil to an inflation index based on the cost to the oil countries of the major commodities they buy from the industrial world.

But the proposal likely to get the most attention — and cause the most controversy — is the recommendation by Kuwait, Algeria and Iran that the 13 nations all cut production.

The aim would be to shore up the present prices by mopping up the glut of oil caused by the world economic slowdown and conservation measures. Reportedly a majority of the countries support the proposal. But it is likely to be rejected by several governments who need every bit of oil revenue they can get.

The Arab Press Service in Beirut reported 10 days ago that production was already down from 10 to 20 per cent in five major members of OPEC. They included Iran 11 per cent; Kuwait 10 per cent; Iraq 14 per cent; Libya 20 per cent; and Algeria 16-18 per cent.

Another member of the cartel, Abu Dhabi, said at the time that its production had been cut 50 per cent, and observers said it might run short of funds. Last week the sheikdom announced it had ordered the companies to return production to near-normal.

Some OPEC officials complained that the preoccupation with revenues threatened to obscure the original purpose of the meeting.

The current meeting was called to prepare for a conference of OPEC oil, finance and foreign ministers in Algiers March 1-3. That meeting is to make final preparations for the OPEC summit meeting March 4-6. At the summit parley, the chiefs of state are supposed to agree on the positions they will take in a future conference of oil-exporting and oil-importing nations.

Panel redrafts Rhodes plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An Ohio House Ways and Means subcommittee went to work today to redraft Gov. James A. Rhodes proposed $2.5 billion bond issue to help rejuvenate cities and make other capital improvements throughout the state.

At the same time, the House Economics and Federal Relations Committee planned to hear more testimony on a proposed constitutional amendment to help provide more housing.

The Senate Judiciary Committee continued its deliberations on the governor's $1.6 billion transportation bond issue, while the Ways and Means Committee of the upper chamber slated a first hearing today on a major industrial tax abatement plan.

Members of the various committees convened Monday night to begin crucial hearings on the four proposed constitutional amendments Rhodes is asking the Democratic legislature to place on the June 3 primary ballot. The lawmakers have only until March 5 to act under a deadline imposed by law.

Democrats, who had more time to study the governor's sweeping economic program over the weekend, planned to offer amendments and substitutions.

But the program was still intact after Monday night hearings.

Changes could be offered today in the method proposed to finance bond issues suggested in the package. Democrats generally are backing away from Rhodes' plan for a seven-tenths of a cent increase in the sales tax contained in the big $2.5 billion bond issue.

House Ways and Means Chairman George Tablack, D-52 Campbell, and others have indicated they would prefer to abandon the sales tax increase in favor of some sort of combination of state income and corporate franchise tax hikes.

Tablack named himself chairman of the subcommittee considering the $2.5 billion bond issue. Others on the panel are Reps. Dennis Eckart, D-18 Euclid; Marcus Roberto, D-62 Ravenna; Robert E. Netzley, R-81 Laura, and Fred B. Hadley, R-79 Bryan.

Senate Judiciary Chairman David L. Headley, D-28 Barborton, said he still wants more information about the funding of Rhodes' $1.6 billion transportation bond issue, which is before Headley's committee. He is not convinced, he said, that a proposed nine-tenths of a cent increase in the gasoline tax will fund the program over the envisioned 30-year period.

The Senate held a brief floor session and conducted routine business Monday night to begin its work week. The House was to convene today.

Floodwaters slowly fall across Ohio

By The Associated Press

Some flooding continued along the Hocking River in Hocking and Athens counties today, but most streams in eastern Ohio were receding after the heavy rains ended.

The Hocking River crested at four feet above the 12-foot flood stage early today and was expected to rise to slightly above the 20-foot flood level at Athens this morning before receding.

The sheriff's departments in the two counties said some lowlying areas were flooded but no new evacuations were necessary. Monday more than 25 families were evacuated from their homes at Rockbridge because of rising waters.

Some flooding was reported along the Muskingum River Monday night. The river rose about a half-foot above the 11-foot flood stage at McConnellsville, but failed to reach anticipated levels at Zanesville, the National Weather Service reported.

The weather service said the river was expected to crest at 19.4 feet, about 1.4 feet below flood stage, at Zanesville this morning.

Ex-Red premier Bulganin succumbs

MOSCOW (AP) — Nikolai Bulganin, premier of the Soviet Union from 1955 until Nikita Khrushchev dumped him in 1958, has died after a "protracted serious illness," Tass reported. He was 79.

The brief report by the official Soviet news agency said Bulganin died on Monday. It did not report where he died nor did it give the nature of his illness.

One of the last of the Old Bolsheviks, Bulganin joined the Communist party in 1917, the year of the Bolshevik Revolution, and made his way up the official ladder to become Stalin's defense minister after World War II.

Khrushchev made him premier in February 1955 and for two years he was the party chief's traveling companion abroad and closest associate in public at home. But Khrushchev ousted him in March 1958 because he failed to back his mentor in a power struggle the previous June.

Controlling board won't fund probe

By WILLIAM KRONHOLM

Associated Press Writer
COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The State Controlling Board has refused to fund a special grand jury probe of organized crime in Clark County, saying it needs more time for one member to study the request.

The attorney general requested $30,000 Monday to pay for expenses of the special grand jury. But state Sen. Max H. Dennis, R-10 Wilmington, asked the board to defer the request for two weeks.

Dennis, who represents Clark County and is a member of the board, said he needs to consult with local law enforcement officials on their view of state authorities stepping in.

Dennis also noted the request came in the form of an emergency request and was not on the board's printed agenda.

"This is a total surprise to me," Dennis said. "This is kind of a slap in the face to the local people."

The objective may be admirable, but I don't want to vote for it," he said. The board then agreed to delay the request as Dennis wished.

The action came despite warnings by

Asst. Atty. Gen. Ben Espy, chief of the criminal activities division, that delays could jeopardize cases the attorney general has prepared.

"We want to move on this as soon as possible," Espy said.

The probe began last August under instructions from former Gov. John J. Gilligan, Espy said. It culminated in raids of 36 county bars, restaurants and pool halls on Dec. 30 by a state strike force.

Espy said coin-operated gambling devices were confiscated during the raids, and have been under analysis since then.

He said the attorney general has determined there is sufficient evidence to prosecute and wants to take the case before a grand jury quickly.

Espy added that a regular grand jury could not be used because the evidence is too extensive. He said a regular county grand jury has too many routine matters to consider the evidence full-time, so a special grand jury is needed.

Dennis noted editorials by Springfield newspapers have criticized the attorney general's investigation. But Espy said the editorials "are not true."

High court nixes price-fix appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two bar associations arguing that federal antitrust laws should apply to price-fixing by lawyers have been rebuffed for the second time by the Supreme Court.

The court refused Monday to reconsider its decision of Jan. 13 refusing to accept briefs from the New York City and District of Columbia bar groups opposing an antitrust exemption for lawyers.

The two groups needed court permission because the Fairfax County, Va., bar association, whose minimum fee schedule is being challenged in the court, had declined to consent to the briefs.

By The Associated Press
Light snow from the Great Lakes to the Tennessee Valley was all that remained today of a late-winter storm that had closed schools and businesses and hobbled traffic in the upper Mississippi Valley.

The storm buried parts of five states under 7 to 15 inches of snow Sunday night and Monday and the digging out continued today.

The storm concentrated its punch along a path that began in Missouri and spread rapidly into adjacent areas of western Illinois, eastern Iowa, southwestern Wisconsin and southeastern Minnesota. The snow was accompanied by 25-to-50-mile-per-hour winds in some cases.

Skies began clearing over Missouri late Monday, but most of the state's big cities declared another school holiday due to snow-clogged roads.

While most major highways in the storm belt were open early today, many secondary roads remained closed. Road crews worked through the night in many areas.

Rain continued in the Northeast today. New York City measured nearly 2 inches of rain since Monday morning.

The National Weather Service said heavy rain and melting snow have brought many streams out of their banks from the middle Mississippi Valley through the Ohio Valley and into the Northeast.

Two to three inches of rain over northern Arkansas and southern Missouri in recent days brought a sharp rise in the Black River of northeast Arkansas. The stream was 5.3 feet above the 14-foot flood stage at Black Rock, where a crest of 20 feet was expected.

Minor flooding also developed in parts of Pennsylvania as a result of

Supreme Court suspends Dean

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court has suspended John W. Dean III, former White House counsel, from practicing before it. The court told Dean to show cause within 40 days why he shouldn't be barred.

Dean already has been disbarred by a three-judge court in Virginia and suspended from the practice of law in the District of Columbia.

Dean, who was instrumental in Watergate disclosures, pleaded guilty to one count of conspiracy to obstruct justice in connection with the scandal.

He served a little over four months of a 1-to-4-year sentence and was released Jan. 8 from a federal penal facility at Fort Holabird, Md.

Stock list down again

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit taking and concern over the position of a New York state agency's securities drove the stock market into another broad decline today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 15.10 at 721.84 after a drop of 12.83 Monday, and losers overwhelmed gainers by more than a 6-1 margin on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said some of the selling appeared to represent a spillover of unhappiness from the bond markets, where prices fell sharply on the threat of default on bond anticipation notes of New York's Urban Development Corp. New York Gov. Hugh Carey said late Monday he had been unable to persuade banks to come to the aid of the state agency.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index fell .92 to 76.45.

Analysts said the market's steep and almost uninterrupted climb since late last year had left it vulnerable to a selloff. Monday's drop of better than 12 points in the Dow apparently was taken as a signal by investors that such a technical pullback was at hand.

The Big Board's composite index slumped .80 to 42.31.

Ferguson holding up tax refunds

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Almost 90,000 refunds from the state income tax ready to be processed and mailed to taxpayers are being delayed in a dispute between Auditor Thomas E. Ferguson and Tax Commissioner Gerald S. Collins.

Ferguson said today that he was withholding the refunds until he was allowed to examine tax returns to determine the accuracy of the refund checks.

However, Ed Lindley, deputy tax commissioner, said, "Those returns are confidential." He said Collins refused to allow Ferguson to make the checks after the tax agency approved the refunds.

The state auditor processes the returns and then mails the refunds. Atty. Gen. William J. Brown was asked Jan. 21 to issue an opinion whether the auditor's office had the authority to examine income tax returns.

A spokesman in Brown's office said an opinion was expected to be issued this week.

Steve Jay of the auditor's office said 89,000 refunds were ready to be processed. He said last year the refunds averaged $20 a return.

Bill slashes jobless wait

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A Democratic senator Monday night introduced a bill to eliminate the one-week waiting provision in Ohio's unemployment compensation law, but it wasn't a nudge from GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes that brought it about.

Sen. Thomas E. Carney, D-32 Girard, said he had been planning to introduce the proposal long before Rhodes' surprise announcement last week he would support it.

The governor's endorsement reversed a Republican position of long standing, and resulted in a call Monday from the Ohio Chamber of Commerce for its members to try to persuade Rhodes the change would make Ohio "an even more costly state in which to maintain jobs and investment."

Carney, like other Democrats, said he was "delighted" that Rhodes will back the bill long sought by labor.

"We welcome his support," he added.

U.S. begins heavy airlift in Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States is beginning an airlift of emergency food supplies to the blocked Cambodian capital of Phnom Penh.

Three commercial DC8 aircraft will begin carrying rice and some fuel today or Wednesday, increasing to five aircraft and six or seven flights a day for no longer than a 30 day period, according to Assistant Secretary of State Philip Habib.

The airlift coincides with warnings by Habib that the Lon Nol government can not survive more than a month or two without additional U.S. military aid.

Habib testified Monday before the Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee on foreign aid on behalf of President Ford's request for an additional $222 million in aid to Cambodia in the next four months.

Habib said all of the aid provided in last year's foreign aid authorization bill for Cambodia has now been used. This includes $200 million for military aid, plus $75 million of Defense Department military stocks, $100 million for economic assistance and $77 million for food.

The long distance swallow

It was some years ago that the goldfish-swallowing craze hit its peak on the nation's college campuses. Happily, there are no indications that any serious revival of this piscatory sophomorphism is in store.

It was recorded, nevertheless, that a bizarre variant of the practice has come to light in Harrisburg, Pa. At a charity event sponsored by a community college, two students teamed up to set what we shall describe as probably the World Record Long Distance Live Hors d'oeuvre Swallow.

This was accomplished when Mike Huling tossed a wriggling goldfish 41 feet 10 inches to Hank Ettel, who caught the tidbit in his mouth and swallowed it. An historic moment, of sorts.

While full of admiration for the feat, we confess to some queasiness about the whole idea of using live creatures in this way. We rather hope that attempts to surpass the WRDLHS will not be made at other centers of learning.

WASHINGTON CALLING.... By Marquis Childs

The oil game

WASHINGTON — Intensive nose counting is going on to try to see who wins the oil game. It turns out on whether enough Senators can be lined up to sustain President Ford's veto of the action by Congress cancelling the oil import tariff.

Minority leader Hugh Scott told the President he could count on the requisite 33 or 34 votes, depending on Senators present and voting, to make sure that the veto is not overridden. The hard count is 30, all Republicans. Scott counts on adding not less than five Democrats, including the venerable John Stennis of Mississippi.

But another view from high in the President's circle of advisers is much more relaxed. Let them override the veto. Then people will see that they have nothing to offer and all they can do is oppose what the President is trying to carry out.

The saddest commentary is that almost no one understands what the oil game is all about. The public will get the message when gasoline goes to 65 cents or 75 cents a gallon. Then there will be a new round of passing the knife with blame likely to be broad enough to fall on both the executive and Congress.

The weakness of the Democrats is that they have failed to come up with an agreed program. Individuals in both House and Senate have made sensible proposals, less radical than the President's 3 per cent tax on imported oil which, coupled with decontrolling "old" oil, would lift the cost per barrel from $9.50 to $14.50. The corresponding increase at the gas pump would mean close to $1 a gallon.

There is a wry laughter in the White House over Hubert Humphrey saying in January that the Democrats would come up with their own tax program in 30 days and then putting off the deadline recently to 60 to 90 days. What he said on Meet the Press was that if Congress did not come up with a program and adopt it in that time, the recession would become a depression.

A favorite indoor sport is lambasting the congressional leadership. On the House side it is feeble to nonexistent. On the Senate side there are cracks at the top with hesitation on the part of Majority Leader Mike Mansfield bringing jealous contenders for power to the front.

What few people at either end of Pennsylvania Avenue seem to realize is that this can mean a plague on both your houses. A widespread disillusion with all government is one of the disturbing facts of life today. There is widespread doubt that any measures now visible can cure the twin evils of recession and inflation.

That Congress should parcel out 103 days of vacation during the year sets tempers boiling. The House took the traditional Washington's birthday leave to barnstorm while theoretically the Senate remained in session. But it proved difficult to impossible to get Senate quorums for key committees since so many Senators had also taken to the road.

If we're in a war on inflation and-or recession, as the President says, then how can Congress spend so much time back home? That reaction reflected in an outpouring of mail has resulted in a tacit agreement between Mansfield and Hugh Scott to scale down the vacation days by at least 10. The next vacation comes over Easter.

The two avowed senatorial candidates for the Democratic nomination, Lloyd M. Bentsen of Texas and Henry M. Jackson of Washington, will not be helped by the record being written or not written in the first two months of the session. Their own absenteeism as they crisscross the country building up a following will hardly help in creating the image of a Congress buckling down to the task of solving the economic crisis.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR, RECORD-HERALD:

There is an association in this country called Gamblers Anonymous. It is made up of some 5,000 individuals who have turned to this group for help. Conservative estimates say that there are 10 million chronic gamblers in the United States.

"Time magazine" reported that these compulsive gamblers "... are caught in a wheel of misfortune whose payoffs are broken families, lost jobs and bankruptcy - or, often, embezzlement."

For the interests of public welfare, one would think that legislators would do all to discourage gambling, yet some 14 states have adopted gambling (lotteries) as a means of collecting state revenue.

"Consumer Reports" says that in New York, state lotteries add less than 1 per cent to state revenues and in most states less than 2 per cent. "U.S. News & World Report" says that in New York City "police studies circulated privately... show dramatic increase in illegal gambling since the state began to run its own lottery system and off-track betting parlors." A high-ranking police officer explained: "A climate has been created to gamble. Because it is now possible to bet legally on horses, thousands of people who never in the world would have thought of betting on football or basketball or baseball are now betting with the bookies."

Lotteries constitute gambling. Gambling runs a foul of the ethics still held by Bible believing Christians. It violates biblical principles and contradicts a true faith in Jesus Christ.

The prevalence of gambling points to a breakdown of the biblical ethic of work which reveals that honesty, industry, thrift and service to God and man should be part of one's daily life.

Gambling is a something - for - nothing philosophy. No genuine Christian should spend one dime on lottery tickets.

Shock probation comes under fire

By PERRY SMITH
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Four months after sentencing, a three-time convicted rapist in Montgomery County is put on shock probation.

The community shows alarm. Judge Douglas Ferguson is attacked on many fronts.

Shortly thereafter, the rapist is picked up by police in a neighboring town on a warrant charging him with a fourth rape, one that allegedly took place six days before he entered the prison on the third charge.

The man's attorney asks that his client be sent back to prison. He said his client was not mentally able to handle the controversy and remain out of trouble.

State Rep. Robert E. Netzel, R-81 Laura, doesn't think this was an isolated case. He wants to outlaw shock probation, one of the new penal tools aimed at cutting back unnecessary jailing.

Netzel is preparing a bill that would not only take away a judge's right to hand down shock probation but would require him to give a mandatory sentence for anybody convicted of a crime against a child.

Netzel believes the average Ohio jurist lives in a different world, isolated from the dangers other citizens face. "How many of them have been hit on the head or had members of their family raped?" he asked. "These judges are isolated in a judicial world of do-gooders."

Netzel contends he isn't the only lawmaker concerned with shock probation. It gained national prominence when a federal judge used it to get Watergate defendants talking about their part in the break-in of Democratic National Headquarters and the ensuing cover-up.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

If it's not exhibitionism, what is it?

DEAR ABBY: Why is it that when a man is caught exposing himself in public, he is charged with indecent exposure, locked up and they call him an exhibitionist? Then in his defense, they say that "exhibitionism" is an illness, characterized by an uncontrollable urge to expose oneself, and that a man who does it needs treatment, not punishment.

But when a woman exhibits her body in topless (and bottomless) bars, or dances practically naked on the stage, every man in the place gawks, gets his eyes full, and says: "Isn't that sexy?"

Let's be fair, Abby. Isn't her "exhibitionism" an illness, too? And shouldn't she be treated for a compulsion to expose herself in public?

ONE MAN'S VIEW

DEAR ABBY: Not necessarily. "Exhibitionism" in the medical legal sense applies only to males who display their genitals in public. (Such men are usually impotent and insecure in their masculinity and behave in this manner in order to compensate for it.) Women who work in topless bars and dance practically naked on the stage do so because they are proud of their bodies and enjoy the applause and the money.

DEAR ABBY: When I come home after work, I don't expect an elaborate meal, but I do expect to eat. The other evening my wife put two hot dogs and some potato chips on a plate. That was all. She called it "dinner." This has happened before and I told her that this was not my idea of a meal. Is it yours?

UNDERFERD IN CONN.

DEAR UNDERFERD: No. Tell her again. But next time be more specific. Tell her what your idea of a meal is.

DEAR ABBY: My problem is most unusual. My in-laws love me too much! They are constantly telling me how much they prefer me to Kate, my husband's first wife.

My husband rarely mentions Kate, but from what little bit he has said about her, I know that she was very difficult to get along with. I suspect she had some serious emotional problems that she couldn't deal with. I am not defending her, but I don't like the way my in-laws preface every story with: "I know you don't like to hear about Kate, but..." and then go ahead and talk about her until I want to scream.

I've spoken to my husband about this and he says it's just their way of telling me how much they appreciate having me in the family.

Have you any ideas on how to solve this?

TOO MUCH LOVE

DEAR TOO MUCH: Yes. The next time someone says: "I know you don't like to hear about Kate...", jump in with "You do? Then, please don't tell me about her, and by the way, do you think the rain will hurt the rhubarb?" (Repeat this every time they mention Kate, and soon your problem will be solved.)

Today In History

Today is Tuesday, Feb. 25, the 56th day of 1975. There are 309 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: In 1793, heads of the various U.S. government departments met with President George Washington at his home. It was the first recorded Cabinet meeting.

On this date — In 1783, Denmark recognized the independence of the United States.

In 1901, J.P. Morgan incorporated the U.S. Steel Corp. in New Jersey.

In 1913, the 16th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution went into effect, giving Congress the authority to levy income taxes.

In 1919, Oregon became the first state to tax gasoline.

In 1927, inhabitants of the American Virgin Islands were granted U.S. citizenship.

In 1956, Nikita Khrushchev went before a Communist Party congress in Moscow and denounced the late Soviet dictator, Joseph Stalin.

Ten years ago: Pope Paul VI conferred the cardinal's insignia on 26 new princes of the Roman Catholic Church at St. Peter's Basilica.

Five years ago: President George Pompidou of France told the U.S. Congress a quick solution to the Middle East problem should be sought through a four-power conference at the United Nations.

One year ago: President Nixon's personal lawyer, Herbert Kalmbach, pleaded guilty in Federal court in Washington to charges that he had promised an ambassador a better assignment for a $100,000 dollar campaign contribution.

Today's birthdays: Democratic Senator John McClellan of Arkansas is 79. Former Beale George Harrison is 32. British actor Tom Courtenay is 38.

Thought for today: Ignorance never settles a question — Benjamin Disraeli, British prime minister, 1804-1881.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26

ARIES

(March 21 to April 20)

By working quietly in the background, you may get some information highly useful to job or business interests. To insure favorable results, however, double-check before using it.

TAURUS

(April 21 to May 21)

It will now be up to you to make the overtures necessary to bring opposing forces together and conclude agreements beneficial to all. Success here will add a bright feather to your cap.

GEMINI

(May 22 to June 21)

A day in which your innately active and energetic self will be highly stimulated. Don't expect all to share your enthusiasms, however.

CANCER

(June 22 to July 23)

Try to control a tendency to worry over personal problems. Help is on the way! In fact, you should not only find assistance in your current dilemma, but also gain insight into how to prevent future ones.

LEO

(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Work should go exceptionally well for you now and superiors will notice the results. If an employer, you will get more help than usual from those under your supervision. A fine situation all around!

VIRGO

(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

An average day on the whole, but there's possibility of some complications in a financial matter. If you can, postpone action for 24 hours, when you can solve all with relative ease.

LIBRA

(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Curb an impulse to take on enterprises you would not ordinarily consider. Stellar influences now suggest that you stick to routine, avoid recklessness of any sort.

SCORPIO

(Oct. 24 to Nov. 22)

Certain changes are in order, others are NOT. Don't "go against the grain" needlessly, or penetrate too deeply into unknown waters before you have the know-how and facts.

SAGITTARIUS

(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Finesse and, possibly, a more original treatment will brighten everyday routine and stimulate your mind in more taxing matters. A good day for accomplishment.

CAPRICORN

(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

A day in which it will be important to use your very best judgment. If, on second thought, an idea or plan seems impractical, don't waste time trying to MAKE it workable.

AQUARIUS

(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Your best stock in trade is your warm personality; also your creative talent. Both should make this a fine day for you — IF you use them smartly.

PISCES

(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Mixed influences. Organize talents and know-how to promote your interests more efficiently. Some personal plans may have to be deleted from your program at present.

YOU BORN TODAY are an unusually gregarious individual and have the sort of magnetic personality that others follow almost without question. Thus, it is extremely important that you determine early in life just where you shall lead. In fact, this is a responsibility which you cannot duck — if you would avoid disaster in your own life and in the lives of others. Properly developed and master of yourself, however, you can be a shining light — especially in the worlds of music, literature, politics or the stage. Since you are possessed of strong humanitarian impulses, you would also do well in social service.

Prosecution rests in burglary trial

The prosecution concluded its case Tuesday morning in the second day of a jury trial in Fayette Common Pleas Court of Paul R. Forsythe, 33, of 703 E. Paint St., who is charged in connection with two burglaries Sept. 13-14.

Testifying for the state were several Washington C. H. police officers who were present at the time of the arrest, agents from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation and Identification in London and Paul Hurler, 629 E. Paint St., who had informed the police of the burglaries and accompanied the defendant during the evening.

According to Hurler, Forsythe and three accomplices, including himself, went to the Associated Plumbers, CCC Highway-W, on the night of Sept. 14. Forsythe and one of the other men remained in the vehicle while Hurler and Paul R. Spence, 36, of Columbus, entered the building. Spence then opened the safe, and all four men left to divide the contents of the safe.

He testified that they returned to Forsythe's home and split the cash from the safe before he (Hurler) met with Police Sgt. Luther Anderson and explain that the four would next attempt to enter the Elks lodge Washington C.H.

The four then left about 2:30 a.m. to open the safe at the lodge. Hurler said he and Spence were again to be the ones to enter the building while Forsythe and an accomplice guarded the outside of the building armed with walkie-talkies.

Hurler and Spence had entered the building and then returned outside to get the tools for the safe, he said, when the police closed in. Forsythe was apprehended about 75 yards from the building.

Astaire happy with Oscar nod

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — "It's astounding. I'm delighted," an exuberant Fred Astaire said after his first Motion Picture Academy award nomination, for his supporting role as a debonair con man in "The Towering Inferno."

Astaire has been in films since 1933, but not until Monday's nominations has the famed dancer ever been in consideration for an Academy award.

"When I first heard the news, I felt dizzy," he said. "I said Who? What? I couldn't believe it!"

The 47th annual nominations offered no real surprises but a few superlatives. Paramount received the most nominations of any studio in history — 39. Warner brothers trailed with 10.

Former UCLA film student Francis

Ford Coppola amassed a record five nominations — for writing, directing and producing "The Godfather Part II" and for writing and producing "The Conversation." Motion Picture Academy rules prevented him from being nominated for directing "The Conversation" as well as "Godfather." Directors can't be named for two pictures.

Television comic Art Carney won his first Academy nomination as best actor for "Harry and Tonto." The others, who have been nominated before but never won the Oscar, are: Albert Finney, "Murder on the Orient Express"; Dustin Hoffman, "Lenny"; Jack Nicholson, "Chinatown"; and Al Pacino, "The Godfather Part II."

Nor have any of the best actress nominees won before: Ellen Burstyn, "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"; Diahann Carroll, "Claudine"; Faye Dunaway, "Chinatown"; Valerie Perrine, "Lenny"; and Gena Rowlands, "A Woman under the Influence."

"Chinatown" and "The Godfather Part II," which topped the nominations with 11 apiece, were named for best picture of 1974, along with "The Conversation," "The Towering Inferno" and "Lenny."

Ingrid Bergman, a two-time winner as best actress, was nominated in the supporting category for her role in "Murder on the Orient Express." Also named were: Valentina Cortese, "Day for Night"; Madeline Kahn, "Blazing Saddles"; Dianne Ladd, "Alice Doesn't Live Here Anymore"; and Talia Shire, "Godfather II."

Competing with Astaire for supporting actor are three actors from "Godfather II" — Robert DeNiro, Michael V. Gazzo and Lee Strasberg — and Jeff Bridges of "Thunderbolt and Lightfoot."

Nominees for best direction are Coppola for "Godfather II"; John Cassavetes, "A Woman under the Influence"; Bob Fosse, "Lenny"; Roman Polanski, "Chinatown"; and

Prayer breakfast draws 47 persons

"How to Handle Worry" was the topic the Rev. Charles J. Richmond chose for the meditation period Tuesday morning during the weekly teen prayer breakfast at the South Side Church of Christ, 921 S. Fayette St.

Mick Hecker, LuAnn Graham and Linda Hollingsworth, all juniors at Washington Senior High School, led the 47 youths and teachers in songs while Jon Creamer, WSHS teacher, offered prayer.

After a breakfast prepared by Mrs. Frances Starkey, Mrs. Velma Gorman and Mrs. LaVonne Creamer, WSHS senior Karen Terry spoke on, "Don't be Ashamed of Being a Christian." She dismissed the group with prayer.

The next prayer breakfast will be held at 6:45 a.m. March 4.

Fuel stamp plan pushed by Hartke

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill introduced by Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., would allow low-income families to purchase fuel stamps to help buy energy they need to cook and heat their homes.

"Many families face the prospect of losing their homes because they can no longer afford their utility bills," the Indiana senator said.

Vehicle, ditch project bids awarded by county commission

The Fayette County Board of Commissioners awarded bids for four vehicles for the county engineer's office and for the construction of the Kellough ditch improvement project during the Monday afternoon session.

Ron Farmer's Auto Supermarket, 330 S. Main St., was the low bidder for two, tandem-axle dump trucks with a bid of $34,285. The London Truck and Tractor, Inc., London, bid $35,650 for the two vehicles.

Billie Wilson Chevrolet, 333 W. Court St., was granted the bids for both a four-door sedan and three-fourth ton pickup truck. Wilson submitted low bids of $3,231.55 for the automobile and $3,613.45 for the pickup while Ron Farmer's requested $3,264 for the sedan and $3,677 for the truck.

The commissioners granted a Greenfield construction firm the Kellough ditch improvement project, which is to be located along Ohio 41-N, near Jeffersonville.

The Bridenstein and Matthews Construction Co., Greenfield, was granted the project with a bid of $5,718.55. Two other bidders for the ditch project were Abbeyhills, Inc., Columbus, with a bid of $17,388.70 and Robert E. Huff, of Bloomingburg, with $11,852.86.

The commissioners could not explain why the Greenfield construction firm submitted a much lower bid than the other two construction firms.

The commissioners also approved vacating several alleys within the village of New Martinsburg as petitioned by two landowners, Howard D. Smith and Lucie E. Smith.

No formal report was made following the semi-annual inspection of the Fayette County Children's Home on Ohio 38 Monday afternoon by the commissioners.

Railroad revamping proposal promoted

WASHINGTON (AP)—The U. S. Railway Association will recommend Wednesday that passenger train service be upgraded on 17 major north-eastern and midwestern routes, sources say.

The USRA, which was set up by Congress to restructure bankrupt railroads in the Northeast into a profit-making corporation, will recommend that financially ailing railroads in the Northeast be consolidated into a 15,000-mile-long freight system.

It also will recommend that 6,200 miles of track in the region be abandoned or subsidized by the states and that Congress consider government ownership of bankrupt railroad lines.

The USRA preliminary plan is to be unveiled Wednesday morning. It will be subject to public hearings and to review by Congress.

The USRA report emphasizes that a massive expenditure of federal funds will be necessary to restore tracks in order to assure continuation of rail services.

"The major feature of the plan is for a single 15,000 mile ConRail (the name given to the organization that will run the reorganized railroads) system with the Norfolk & Western and the Chesapeake & Ohio given certain acquisition and operating rights into the Philadelphia and New York markets," one source said.

The Norfolk & Western and the Chesapeake & Ohio are profitable railroads and will not be included in the ConRail system.

Another major feature of the plan recommends that freight and passenger trains be separated on the Boston to Washington corridor and that the passenger track be upgraded to allow high-speed Metroliner service. The plan also recommends that 16 other routes be upgraded, although both passenger and freight trains would use the same track on those routes.

Switching of the freight trains to other lines would allow Amtrak to upgrade its Metroliner service in the Northeast corridor without having to worry about heavy freight trains beating down upgraded track or slowing passenger trains.

Small business seminars scheduled by Great Oaks

Vernon E. Curran, adult management and marketing consultant for the Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District, announced that two more workshops will be held in mid-March for men and women interested in retraining and financing themselves for new job opportunities.

The workshops are created to assist persons in improving their organizational and management skills and in avoiding pitfalls to opening a small business venture. Records and controls, taxes, insurance, financial factors and how to raise money, and aspects of management are only a few of the many subjects covered at each of the eight-hour workshops.

The Great Oaks Joint Vocational School District will conduct the small business seminars in cooperation with the U.S. Small Business Administration office in Cincinnati.

Cecil G. Boatright, branch manager of the U.S. Small Business Administration office in Cincinnati, said that, "Capacity crowds attended three January workshops indicating a need for further programs." He attributed the success and large attendance to the practical subject matter and wide range of experience of the speakers. Speakers come largely from business and industry with many years in their fields. They also open the door to questions from the floor and "tell it like it is."

Advance registration is urged for the workshops. There is a $2 fee.

Here is the workshop schedule:

— On March 17 and March 24, from 6 until 10 p.m. at Scarlet Oaks Joint Vocational School, 3254 E. Kemper Road, Sharonville. Phone (513) 771-8840; — On March 19 and March 26, from 6 until 10 p.m. at Laurel Oaks Joint Vocational School, Ohio 73, Wilmington. Phone (513) 382-1411.

Calabrese supports rail plan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Democratic Sen. Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, gave his endorsement Monday night to a Republican plan to put $55 million in bond issue funds into a system of commuter trains operating between major Ohio cities.

Calabrese told the Senate Judiciary Committee he "strongly" supports the provision contained in GOP Gov. James A. Rhodes' $1.6 billion transportation bond issue.

The senator served as chairman of a Legislative Service Commission committee that studied the feasibility of the project and recommended alternative ways of creating it.

Rhodes' proposal would have the state subsidize trains on existing tracks on one route connecting Cleveland, Columbus, Dayton, and Cincinnati, and on another linking Cleveland and Pittsburgh by way of Youngstown.

Earlier, Transportation Director Richard D. Jackson said the commuter system would be enhanced as a result of the existing 55-mile-per-hour speed limit on Ohio's interstate and other highways.

Traffic Court

Acting Judge Otis R. Hess Jr. fined several persons Monday during a heavy docket of traffic cases in Municipal Court but the majority of defendants forfeited bonds for failure to appear in court.

Teacher walkout seen possibility

MANSFIELD, Ohio (AP)—Teachers in the Madison Local School District were considering Tuesday whether to withhold services from the school system after three months of contract negotiations.

Marvin Gillson, president of the Madison Local Education Association representing 249 of the district's 270 teachers, said the educators' contract expired two months ago.

Unsettled negotiations involve 11 items, including salary and fringe benefits, Gillson said.

Columbus Grove firm being sued

OTTAWA, Ohio (AP)—Atty. Gen. William J. Brown filed a $30,000 suit in Putnam County Common Pleas Court Monday seeking damages from Schumacher Soil Service, Inc., of Columbus Grove for a fish kill in August, 1972.

Industrial tax incentives eyed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — An industrial tax incentives plan to attract more industry to Ohio, particularly its inner cities, was to get its first hearing today in the Senate Ways and Means Committee.

Gov. James A. Rhodes is asking approval of the proposed constitutional amendment, calling it the most important of a package of four June 3 ballot proposals he submitted to the Democratic legislature earlier this month.

Rhodes is proposing to forgive tax bills for up to 30 years for those industries which locate new facilities or expand existing ones in run down areas of Ohio cities, and for 12 years for those locating elsewhere in the state.

Ways and Means Chairman Marigene Valiquette, D-11 Toledo, called on Rhodes to provide more detailed information about the plan, particularly with regard to what effect it would have on the tax revenue of Ohio's local governments.

Sen. Donald L. Woodland, D-16 Columbus, Monday night offered a proposed substitute for the Rhodes' amendment. It was referred almost immediately to Sen. Valiquette's committee by the Democratic leadership.

Woodland described his proposal as broader than that proposed by the governor. He said it would include distribution centers, such as those for major retail chains, as well as manufacturing plants, among those eligible for tax breaks.

The Columbus senator said that unlike Rhodes' plan, he would require industries to continue to pay their corporate income or franchise taxes.

Instead, they could opt between an abatement on tax assessments on inventory or equipment, he said.

The Woodland proposal would also reduce the period of tax abatement from 30 to 20 years for inner city sites.

Children's mental health center explained to club

A representative of the Nelsonville Children's Mental Health Center was the guest speaker at the Washington C. H. Kiwanis Club meeting Monday night.

Speaking at the Lafayette Inn, John Brennan explained the purpose of the center. He said the facility is designed to assist children ages seven through 17 who have displayed emotional disturbance.

By utilizing family-type living quarters of eight children each, the center attempts to generate a sense of social responsibility in its patients. Brennan noted that the program has been remarkably successful, and the average stay for each youth is only about 90 days.

The road to enrollment at Nelsonville usually begins with a strained relationship in the home, Brennan explained. Nothing seems to go right for the child, and he feels out of place within the normal social framework. His behavior gradually worsens. The child begins to fight, become truant from school and rebels at authority. Eventually, concerned parents enter him in a local mental health program for counseling.

In some cases, counseling is sufficient to overcome the difficulty. If so, the child becomes active in school and community affairs, and finds companionship in his peer group. Fayette County referrals receive such counseling in the center at Chillicothe.

If additional help for the child is necessary, the youngster may be referred to Nelsonville for a residential program. Treatment there can include counseling, medication, schooling, and physical activity which reorients the child into the social mainstream.

At the close of the meeting, George Gibbs announced that the Washington C. H. Kiwanis Club will host the 10-W District council meeting on Monday, March 3. The meeting was conducted by president-elect Duane French.

Utility users criticize PUCO

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Coalition of Concerned Utility Users Monday criticized the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio for allowing a utility to pass through state excise taxes in its fuel adjustment clause.

The PUCO granted the Dayton Power & Light Co. permission to pass on the tax. The fuel adjustment clause now permits the utility to pass on rising fuel costs to customers without the long delay of rate proceedings.

The excise tax is four per cent.

Churchmen from Russia set Ohio visit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Church officials here are hoping a visit to Columbus this week by a delegation of religious leaders from the Soviet Union will not be marred by protests from conservative groups.

The Russians will visit here Thursday through Saturday as part of a three-week nationwide tour at the invitation of the National Council of Churches. Last summer 20 American church leaders visited the Soviet Union.

NEW YORK (AP) — On March 14, CBS starts showing "We'll Get By," a half-hour situation comedy series about a New Jersey family. But the show's creator won't be able to see its national premiere.

He says he'll be busy that night, supervising the taping of the pilot of another series he wrote and hopes to sell to NBC.

But in June, writer Alan Alda resumes his better-known acting career as Hawkeye when "M-A-S-H" cranks up for its fourth season.

Right now, Alda is drumbeating for "We'll Get By," originally scheduled to start on CBS last September. It was dropped from the 1974-75 lineup when a federal court delayed the start of revised prime time access rules for network programming at night.

The show was hastily put back in the CBS lineup last week when the network decided "Khan," a detective series installed as a midseason replacement, was a flop and ordered it axed after four shows.

Alda said CBS programming chief Fred Silverman notified him of CBS' Friday night program change only last week "and we've been in high gear ever since, trying to snap into action." "I guess he (Silverman) felt a pressing need to do something about Friday night. He made a very fast series of decisions, so we had to go right to work to let the audience know we're opening up then."

Fortunately for Alda, 13 "We'll Get By" shows already are in the can. All he has to do is publicize the series and hope it survives in its time slot against NBC's hit "Chico and the Man" series.

He also has to worry later about whether NBC will buy his proposed new series, the pilot of which he said he began writing just last December after "M-A-S-H" finished production for the season.

The new project, as yet untitled, is a situation comedy starring Jack Weston as a lawyer "who just borders on shadiness while trying to earn a living as best he can," Alda said.

Horsemen hold 25th annual banquet

Seven local horse owners received recognition when the Fayette County Harness Horsemen's Association held their 25th annual awards banquet Saturday night at the Mahan building. Each year a Fayette County farm is featured at the banquet. This year's theme was centered around Midland Acres.

The Master of Ceremonies, Dana Taylor, began the banquet by welcoming the guest and introducing the guest speaker, Chuck Stokes. Stokes has been the Public Relations Director at Scioto Downs since 1959. He spoke on the heritage of Harness Racing.

Awards, trophies and door prizes were given for the year's accomplishments in the various categories and racing films supplied by the United States Trotting Association were shown.

Hoosiers remain atop poll

By The Associated Press

Top-ranked Indiana has gained prominence in college basketball this season by winning all its games while on the other end of the poll, No. 20 Washington has received attention by finally beating UCLA.

The Hoosiers again are No. 1 in The Associated Press major college basketball poll after receiving all 47 first-place votes cast Monday by a nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

NCAA-bound Indiana, 26-0, wrapped up its third straight Big Ten Conference title Saturday with a one-point victory over Purdue, but the Hoosiers' jubilation was dampened by an injury to leading scorer Scott May, who broke a bone in his left arm and is lost for the season.

Indiana Coach Bobby Knight thinks his Hoosiers now will be hard-pressed to remain the nation's only undefeated team. "It'll be a hell of a thing for these kids to go all the way undefeated," he said.

The Hoosiers, riding a 29-game winning streak that began last season, received 940 points in the balloting.

Meanwhile, Washington, 16-7, turned up in the Top 20 after a 103-81 romp over UCLA, 20-3, which fell from second to fifth with 624 points.

Washington Coach Marv Harshman said the conquest of the Bruins was "the most satisfying victory for me ever." The triumph ended UCLA's 12-year domination of the Huskies.

Maryland, 20-3, replaced the Bruins as No. 2 in the poll, moving up one notch from last week after receiving 798 points.

Louisville, 20-2, jumped from sixth to third with 633 points, three points more than No. 4 Kentucky, 20-3, which rose from seventh to fourth.

Marquette, 20-3, climbed from ninth to sixth with 470 points and North Carolina State, 19-4, the defending NCAA champion, tumbled from fourth to seventh with 405 points.

Alabama, 20-3, dropped three rungs and was in eighth with 379 points, followed by Arizona State, 20-3, with 281 points and Penn., 20-4, with 195 points. Arizona State was eighth in the last poll and Penn was 12th.

Clemson, 15-8, which humbled North Carolina State 92-70 Saturday, took five giant steps into 11th place. Southern California, 16-6, fell from 10th to 12th. Creighton, 19-4 and 14th last week, now is in 13th place, exchanging positions with 14th-rated North Carolina, 16-7. Texas-El Paso, 18-4, moved into the rankings at No. 15.

Notre Dame, 16-8, slid from 11th to 16th. Oregon State, 15-9, was 17th after spending last week in 20th place. Pan American, 21-2, gained one spot to 18th and Arizona, 18-5, fell from 15th to 19th.

Church League

White Oak United Methodist eliminated Good Hope United Methodist from the Community Education Church League Tournament Monday night.

The win puts White Oak into the finals of the double elimination tournament against undefeated Gregg Street at 7:45 tonight. White Oak will have to win two from Gregg Street to take the championship.

Good Hope took an early first quarter lead and the score was knotted at the end of three seesaw quarters, 53-53. White Oak went on to blow Good Hope off the court with 33 points in the final period to secure a final berth in the tourney.

Score by quarters:

White Oak	17	24	12	33-86
Good Hope	18	16	19	14-67

WHITE OAK — Woodrow 11-4-26; King 10-0-20; Lanman 10-10-30; Barton 5-0-10; Totals 36-14-86.

GOOD HOPE — Wilson 11-3-25; Huysman 5-0-10; Braun 9-1-19; Reisinger 3-0-6; Hoppes 2-1-5; Taylor 1-0-2; Totals 31-5-67.

Rookie hurler getting involved

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — When Pat Darcy, rookie pitcher for the Cincinnati Reds, realized there was more to life than baseball, he decided to get involved.

"We should be doing something to help people," he remembers telling a teammate last year.

So he went to work for a mental health center in Arizona during the off-season.

The 24-year-old Troy, Ohio native found the experience so rewarding that he's changing his major in politics to a degree "In rehabilitation or some related field."

Darcy, who marked his only major league start with a 6-2 victory over Atlanta last September, came away convinced from the summer job convinced he was contributing to society in a more meaningful manner.

"That first day I didn't know what to expect," he recalled. "I even hedged at first. I took the job but I told the people at the hospital that I wasn't sure how long I'd be in town, just in case I wanted to get out."

He served as recreation director at the South Arizona Mental Health Center.

"I became attached to them," said Darcy, who was just two semesters away from obtaining his degree in government at the University of Arizona. He's presently attempting to win a spot on the Reds pitching staff.

He put his athletic background to work with a group of patients—men and women—ranging in age from 20 to 60.

"Many were suffering from severe depression and some were schizophrenic. They had no confidence and they didn't want to do anything," Darcy said.

He organized volleyball teams, set up touch football games and for the older patients there was ping pong and shuffleboard.

At first the games were met with cold stares and little response.

Disappointed, Darcy strived harder to gain involvement.

"I was actually getting to the point where some of them were building confidence in themselves.

"Seeing them can make you understand a lot about yourself and make you realize you have a lot going for you," he said.

Sparky Anderson works on pitching

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Cincinnati Reds Manager Sparky Anderson says his No. 1 goal of spring training is to have his pitching staff ready for the test posed by a "killer" opening schedule.

The Reds face the defending National League champion Los Angeles Dodgers seven times in the opening 10 days. The two rivals meet in baseball's traditional season opener April 7.

Rain washed out part of Monday's practice session.

In 1955, Whitey Ford of the Yankees pitched five shutouts. Two of them were one-hitters in succession and two were two-hit games.

Blue Lions face tough Lancers in sectional tilt

The Washington C.H. Blue Lions will make another trip to Unioto High School for the second round of the class AA sectional tournament at 7:30 tonight against Federal Hocking, a foe that could end or continue the Blue Lions 1974-75 basketball season.

The Blue Lions are fresh from Friday's 64-56 sectional victory over Hillsboro. Washington got a shot in the arm when Doug Phillips was able to see action despite a broken nose. Phillips helped lead the team into the sectional's second round with some consistent long range shooting.

Phillips will be set to go tonight with running mates John Denen, Ken Upthegrove, Ed DeWees, Dewey Foster and scoring leader Chuck Byrd expected to see most of the action.

Freshman John Denen was very impressive Friday against Hillsboro, when he pumped in 16 points. High scoring guard, Chuck Byrd is expected to hit near his 19 points a game average against Federal Hocking tonight.

The Federal Hocking Lancers will bring big Dan Bise into the Unioto gym in an attempt to eliminate the Blue Lions from post season play. Bise, 6-foot-5 senior center, is averaging 27 points and 12 rebounds a game for the Lancers, who are 11-7 on the year. Federal Hocking works its offense around the consistent Bise, an honorable mention all-Ohio pick last year.

Brian Lackey, 6-foot-3, and Doug Riley, 6-foot-1, round out the Lancers' front line. The Federal Hocking Coach, Mark Smith, usually starts Ken Bowers, 5-foot-10, and Terry Russell, 6-foot-1, at the guards. The two forwards, Lackey and Riley, are averaging around ten points a game and Bowers along with Russell are throwing in about five from the guard positions.

Coach Gary Shaffer's defense will be trying to keep the ball away from the dangerous Bise in the middle to aid the Blue Lion's attempt to gain a berth in the sectional final, for the second year in a row. This time against the winner of Thursday's Greenfield McClain-Vinton County contest.

MT, Washington lose girls games

Miami Trace and Washington C. H. girls dropped varsity basketball contests Monday afternoon.

Miami Trace dropped a close decision to Wilmington at the Bloomingburg gym, 37-34. Trace dropped behind early and the girls trailed by seven points at the half. Then, Trace rallied to pull within one point at the start of the final period, but Wilmington held on for a narrow three point win. Freda Swaney led Trace girls with 11 points.

The Miami Trace reserves, also, dropped behind early, but were able to pull the game out, 24-23.

Washington lost to a fine Hillsboro team, 36-26, at the Washington gym. Hillsboro led all the way. The Court House girls never got things going. Kris Hinkle scored half of Washington's 26 points for the girls scoring honors.

The Washington reserves were able to pull out a close one, 19-17.

The Washington loss set the varsity record below the .500 mark at 3-4 and the reserves win upped its record to 3-4. Washington's next game will be at Greenfield next Monday.

Miami Trace varsity slipped to 2-6 after its loss and the reserves are 3-5. The Trace girls take on Hillsboro in Monday's next outing.

NBA playoff race still scrambled

By The Associated Press

Despite additions to the playoff format this season, the Los Angeles Lakers, Milwaukee Bucks and New York Knicks — regular post-season participants — are heading for subtraction from this year's National Basketball Association playoffs.

The Lakers, who have not missed the post-season competition since moving to Los Angeles from Minneapolis in 1960, are in the biggest danger of being eliminated. They are in last place in the five-team Pacific Division of the Western Conference.

The Bucks also are in last place, in the Western Conference's four-team Midwest Division, but they are closer to playoff contention than the Lakers. Milwaukee has reached the playoffs every year since Kareem Abdul-Jabbar joined the team in 1969.

Of the three perennial powerhouses, the Knicks have the best chance of making the playoffs. New York, which has participated in them every year since 1967, is in third place in the Atlantic Division of the Eastern Conference.

Under the NBA's revised playoff formula this season, five teams from each conference — the top two teams in each division and the thirdplace club with the best record in the conference — earn playoff berths. Last season, only eight teams instead of 10 participated.

If the regular season ended today — there still are six weeks to go — the playoff teams would be Boston and Buffalo from the Atlantic Division; Washington, Cleveland and "wild card" Houston from the East's Central Division; Chicago, Kansas City-Omaha and "wild card" Detroit from the Midwest Division, and Golden State and Seattle from the Pacific Division.

Biddy scores

The Jeffersonville Sixth Grade finished with a perfect record as the Biddy League basketball season ended over the weekend. Jeff beat Bloomington 42-12, to go undefeated. Jeff King scored 18 points for Jeff Sixth and Brian Larrick had eight points for the loser.

In other action, New Holland beat Jeff Fifth Grade 29-21, and Madison Mills edged Good Hope, 18-16.

Community Education receives $2,000 Mott Foundation grant

The Washington C.H. Community Education advisory council announced it has received a $2,000 grant from the Charles Stewart Mott Foundation of Flint, Mich., for use in the local Community Education program during the regular monthly meeting in the Washington C.H. Middle School.

The council was also informed of a position granted under the Title VI program and is now contacting applicants in order to provide different activity opportunities for the residents of the Washington C.H. area.

In other business, council members learned that WLW-Radion in Cincinnati has again expressed interest in assisting with another "Offsides" football game and discussed a plan to start a new set of mini-classes in March or April depending on interest in the program.

The group is continuing a study into the possibility of showing films around the county in school auditoriums since there no longer is a movie theatre in the county.

Community Education director Hank Shaffer noted that spring classes have been progressing well. Although the open house registrations were down, Shaffer said that many participants attended the first class meetings and classes are nearly as full as last fall when the program experienced its best attendance.

The advisory council, consisting of Kaye Bartlett, John Gall, John Gruber, Louie Kuhlwein, Bertha Terry, Gary Magary, Bill Martin and Shaffer, suggested that representatives from

Horse apples grow mushrooms

By CADEN BLINCOE

FLORENCE, Ky. (AP) — There's an old saying among the veteran railbirds that the only way to make money following the horses is with a broom and shovel.

While that rather picturesque expression may or may not be true, a lot of successful folks connected with the multi-billion dollar horse industry would argue with it, and it ceases to be a laughing matter when racetrack operators are faced with what to do with what the horses drop during the course of a day's business.

John H. Battaglia, general manager

Fuel adjustment costs to increase

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Utility company customers may pay a slightly larger bill each month as the result of a liberalization of the fuel adjustment clause.

The fuel adjustment clause is the billing mechanism by which power companies each month can pass on their fuel costs to their customers without long delays in rate proceedings.

Last week, the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio expanded the cost pass-through concept used by utility companies to include utility taxes as well as utility costs.

The new order was issued in connection with a natural gas rate increase request by the Dayton Power & Light Co. But PUCO officials said the order probably will be applied in all future gas and electric rate cases as well.

The Dayton utility complained that although the present fuel adjustment clause allows it to recoup rising fuel costs, it does not permit the utility to pass on to customers the four per cent state excise tax on those fuel adjustment earnings.

of the Latonia Race Course in Florence, spoke candidly on the issue.

"Most folks," he said, pay $1 to get in, pay another 35 cents for a program and they're all set for a pretty good night's entertainment and few of them think of the horses and what they do when they're not running on the track.

"But, it's a fact of nature that on or off the track, horses have to use the bathroom facilities and it's a big business," Battaglia said, "creating a monumental problem."

The track has living facilities for 1,100 horses a year, including the harness and thoroughbred season.

It strains the imagination, Battaglia said, to realize the amount the horses produce in a day, much less what they generate in a week's time.

Latonia has an agreement with the Hardy Trucking Co., Wampum, Pa., which sends huge trucks down three times a week at no cost to the track, and hauls the rich material to limestone caves in Pennsylvania where it is used to grow mushrooms.

River Downs Race Course in Cincinnati has a similar agreement with a Lebanon, Ohio, mushroom firm during its 100 days of racing each summer.

Tracks are a big supplier for "horse apples" needed by the mushroom industry, according to Craig Brna, a driver for the Wampum, Pa., trucking firm. He said the growers don't like fertilizer from other animals as well as horses.

He said the firm makes pickups at tracks in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New York, West Virginia and at Keeneland in Lexington, Ky.

"I don't know why," said Brna, who hauls some 70,000 pounds per load three times a week from here.

Battaglia, who said local farmers still get a piece of the action, said track men have been trying schemes for years to get out from under the problem.

Six years ago, Battaglia recalled, two investors, one believed to be former jockey Eddie Arcaro, had a scheme to remove the material from stalls by conveyor belts to pits to be burned.

Battaglia said the scheme had environmental problems and never got off the ground.

And so, until someone finds a way to build a better mousetrap or its equine equivalent along those lines, it remains for people like those hardy folks in Pennsylvania to come in and make a clean sweep of it all.

Contractors see bright Ohio future

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Contractors Association believes the future is bright for the state's construction industry because of the election of Gov. James Rhodes.

Almost the entire current issue of the Ohio Contractor, the official OCA publication, is devoted to a tribute to Rhodes and his bundle of programs to stimulate highway construction in Ohio.

An editorial declares that Jan. 13, the day Rhodes was inaugurated, "ought to be declared a holiday by the Ohio construction industry."

"There is no question about it," the editorial says. "Ohio's construction industry is on the verge of a major expansion."

Pen guards continue to work

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Correction department employees will continue working until March 25 on their old contract, a spokesman for the Ohio Department of Correction and Rehabilitation said Monday.

Joseph A. Ashley said the Ohio State Government Employees, the Ohio Civil Service Employees Association, the American Federation of State, Municipal and County Employees and the Teamsters Union all have accepted a second 30-day contract extension.

The unions represent approximately 2,200 of the 2,800 workers at the eight state corrections facilities.

The correction department's contracts expired Jan. 25.

The correction department said last week it could not begin new contract bargaining until after receipt of negotiation guidelines from the new administration's administrative services department.

Herschel Sigall, director of OSGE, Council 4455, CWA AFL-CIO, said the contract extension offered by the state averted a threatened strike by members of Local 102, guards at the Ohio Southern Correctional Facility at Lucasville.

Sigall said the strike vote is still in effect, and the guards had accepted the extension "with the understanding that negotiations will commence within this (the 30-day) time frame."

Historic flag designation eyed

COSHOCTON, Ohio (AP)—The City of Coshocton wants to be designated national headquarters for historic flags in the 1976 bicentennial celebration.

Colonial Flag Co. and local civic groups and leaders conceived the idea.

The company supplies flags to the state and is manufacturing a series of flags made famous during the Revolution.

Man pleads guilty to felony charges

The last of four Washington C.H. residents charged with felonious crimes stemming from the Jan. 30 burglary of the Revco Discount Drug Center has pleaded guilty in Fayette County Common Pleas Court before Judge Evelyn W. Coffman.

Richard W. Stern, 25, of 706 W. Market St., faces a maximum sentence of six years in jail and a fine of up to $1,500 after appearing with his attorney, Walter A. Seifried, and entering guilty pleas to charges of possession of marijuana and allowing the use of a dwelling for the purpose of keeping narcotic drugs. Additional charges of possession of stolen property will apparently not be pursued by the state.

After receiving a bill of information from Fayette County prosecuting attorneys James A. Kiger and John H. Roszmann, Judge Coffman accepted the guilty pleas as proper and deferred sentencing to a later date.

Three other defendants in the case,

Danny L. Liningier, 22, of 1451 Meadow Drive, Stanley East Jr., 22, of 706 W. Market St., and Russell W. Hidy, 23, of 706 W. Market St., had pleaded guilty earlier this month and are also awaiting sentencing.

A fifth defendant apprehended during a raid by city police, Denise Graham, 24, of 706 W. Market St., was charged with possession of marijuana, a misdemeanor, and her case will be aired later in Municipal Court.

All were charged by the Washington C.H. Police Department Jan. 31 after a raid on the W. Market Street residence. Information supplied by an area resident and a comprehensive investigation by police officers laid the foundation for a search warrant executed at the home. Inside police found an assortment of drugs, hypodermic needles and syringes, and a number of items taken during several area burglaries.

Money Matters

By J. W. Wallace

The Professionals In Your Life . . .

Managing money carefully and well is, for most people, a task that could be overwhelming - beyond understanding. So much to know, so many perplexing complications, so great the opportunities for doing the wrong thing.

Help IS needed - and is available in various ways, so many of which are without cost, just for the asking.

Need information or clarification on general banking, spending, or credit matters? Talk to your Banker.

Financial rights, responsibilities? Talk to a good attorney. It's extremely dangerous to try to be your own lawyer.

For advice on life, health, and any insurance problem, talk to an experienced, knowledgeable insurance broker.

Consult a stock broker or your Banker about investments.

The Internal Revenue Service is paid, through your taxes, to give you free information and guidance regarding tax matters. Tax lawyers or good accountants can often be of help. And, your Banker knows his way around in tax matters.

Turn to the Social Security Office for advice when in doubt about your benefits.

Have a money concern? Ask for help in the right places!

Maybe everyone wouldn't agree, but it appeared that one end of the rainbow touched down in Fayette County this past week. I am certain that Eddie and Phyllis Rea feel this way after falling heir to some of the loot in the recent state lottery.

Oh yes - be sure to reserve either Monday, March 3rd or Tuesday the 4th for the upcoming Washington Court House Lion's Club Annual Variety Show. Better yet, why not get tickets for both evenings!

No need to be confused, in doubt, and to wind up doing nothing, or making the wrong decisions about money matters. Not when we, at our Bank, your Friendly First National Bank of Washington Court House, are ready and prepared to provide the needed advice and guidance.

Opening lead - three of diamonds.

A safety play is basically a protective measure. Declarer assumes an unfavorable lie of the cards and tries to deal with the possibility in the best way he can.

Here is a typical case where West leads a diamond against four spades. Declarer wins with the ace and notes that it is possible to lose three heart tricks and one or two trump tricks.

South can do very little with the trump situation if West has all four of them, so he starts out by leading a low spade to the ace. West playing the three and East the eight. When declarer plays another trump and East produces the ten, South must choose between playing the jack or the king.

This is a fairly common problem, but, unfortunately, there is no invariable rule to rely on. More often than not the king is the better play, but in a particular case the jack may be the right play.

It certainly is in this deal, where playing the jack guarantees the contract while playing the king jeopardizes it.

Obviously, if the finesse wins, South has the contract in tow. As a matter of fact, he is sure of making at least eleven tricks.

Can anything bad happen if South loses the jack to the queen? Positively not. Whatever West returns, South is sure of making at least ten tricks consisting of four spades, four clubs and two diamonds.

But note what happens if declarer does not finesse the jack. If he attempts to run his clubs right away, in order to discard a heart, East will rudely interrupt the procedure by ruffing the third club and shifting to the jack of hearts to put the contract down one.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Informing the Patient

I was a patient in the hospital for a few days with a relatively minor problem. One day my chart was left on my bed. It was impossible to resist the temptation to peek. Before I was caught in the act, I learned more about my condition than anybody had told me before.

Maybe it isn't such a bad idea to let a patient in on the secrets that involve him and him alone.

Mr. J.W., III.

Dear N.: Traditionally, patients arbitrarily have been separated from their charts. The reason was, of course, that patients unable to understand blood counts, X-ray reports, readings of temperature, blood pressure, respiration and heart rate become confused and anxious. False conclusions drawn from reading their charts have created unnecessary fear in patients.

There is now, however, a trend to permit some patients to review their charts under the guidance of their doctors in an effort to reduce anxiety.

A group of doctors at the Medical Center Hospital of Vermont, in Burlington, believes that patients become more cooperative as their anxiety diminishes when they are allowed to examine their hospital records.

These Vermont physicians encourage this added communication. They find "it does no harm and patients feel they are being treated as trusted adults."

Obviously, not all records can be made available to all patients. Doctors carefully evaluate the psychological threshold of their patients and the severity of their illnesses. In many instances, it is better to deliberately avoid giving the patient too much knowledge about serious problems.

When I overeat and smoke too much I get severe heartburn. I know food can do it, but can tobacco give you heartburn?

Mr. M.T., La.

Dear Mr. T.: Dr. Mehl McDowell, of the Los Angeles School of Medicine, made this statement: "In my 25 years of practice it has not been unusual for smokers who gave up tobacco to report the loss of the chronic problem of heartburn."

Try it. You'll find other benefits, too.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers, and, while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

Economist wants $40 billion cut

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — An MIT economist who was among the first to call for a $20 billion tax cut now has raised his estimate to a "conservative" $30 billion to $40 billion "in order to avert disaster."

His suggestion came in a harsh criticism of the Ford administration program which he said would raise prices, increase unemployment, reduce output, raise the budget deficit and favor public over free enterprise growth.

Franco Modigliani, a professor of international finance and economics at Massachusetts Institute of Technology who made the statement, also is president-elect of the prestigious American Economic Association.

In an interview, Modigliani said he wished to express "my astonishment and great disillusionment" with the Ford program, which he said is widely held by economists to be inconsistent and even contradictory in goals and approach.

His tax-cut recommendation is predicated on the assumption that the administration's proposal for $30 billion in higher fuel taxes will not take effect.

One-half the reduction would come in a permanent cut in income taxes, Modigliani said, and the other half as a reduction in employee and employer contributions to Social Security.

"What is needed now is a strong fiscal stimulus," he said. The Social Security tax reduction "would put more spending money immediately in the hands of workers, reduce employer costs of doing business and tend to reduce prices."

He said Congress should take over the stabilization program from the administration, whose program is ill-conceived and poorly structured.

If you ask a competent economist for a plan that would worsen the nation's economic ills, Modigliani said, he would say:

"Put a heavy tax on some major commodity, such as oil. Make sure that the dollars collected by this tax are not returned to the people. Get people out of work in the private sector and rehire them in the public sector. Institute a tight monetary policy and then subsidize investments. Increase the cost of food stamps and don't let Social Security payments increase with prices."

That, he said, is the Ford program. Modigliani said the administration's most sought-after target is higher unemployment "because they think that's the only way to fight inflation. That is unacceptable, both in the short run and the long run."

"There is little evidence that increasing unemployment to 9 per cent from 6 per cent gives anything in the way of reducing inflation," he said. He suggested an interim goal of under 6 per cent unemployment.

The administration is making the error of trying to wipe out inflation too quickly, he said. "Let's aim at reasonable unemployment and inflation will gradually go. We shouldn't try to make it disappear overnight."

Segments of our society are being separated by the language they create, says Philip Lesley in "The People Factor: Managing the Human Climate." Lesley says that specialization sometimes requires special terminology. But there is an added factor—snobbery. People want to make sure others recognize they are on a different level. So they deliberately develop jargon that sets them apart.

Some people get confused. Like the people who call themselves photographers, when really they are camera collectors. Like Don Turner brought up at CKFN class the other night about a front page article in the WALL STREET JOURNAL concerning counterfeit Leica cameras. The article was interesting. It seems some repairman got his mitts on some Leica top-plates that, replacing the plate on a more-common model, created a counterfeit arrity. I quite understand the hobbyist who gets good equipment for the purpose of making good pix. That makes sense. The hobby of collecting things: coins, cameras, or hub caps — that's another thing; involves another mentality. We don't knock it; we sell lots of cameras to camera collectors. However, we hasten to state that photography is our special field, not collecting. Our advice relates only to making good pictures. If your camera will no longer make good pix, our advice is "pitch it." If the junker has some value as a collector's item, that is out of our area of expertise.

Last week's CKFN session was on darkroom work, making prints, both in color and black-and-white. This is an area of photography that's coming on strong right now. With TV getting so lousy we're forced to turn to some other form of leisure time activity. Conversation seems to be a lost art. Some folks are re-discovering good books, but many are finding a big kick in making their own enlargements in the darkroom. And when that bug bites you, dad, you've had it.

COLD AND WET, BUT UNHURT — The driver of this car, John M. Perry, 18, Jeffersonville, was able to crawl from his demolished car unharmed after failing to negotiate a left curve on Parrott-Station Road at 12:01 a.m. Tuesday. His car struck the Dayton Power and Light Co. utility pole in the center of the photo, knocking the transformer off the top of it and then spun around and flipped over in the water-filled roadside ditch. Perry is pictured in the plaid jacket. The man next to him is unidentified.

Two cars demolished in mishaps

The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported six accidents today, in which two autos were demolished, one severely damaged. One driver was injured. Washington C. H. police investigated tow minor accidents.

TUESDAY, 2:45 a.m. — A car driven by Larry B. Ging, 21, Rowe Ging Rd., was demolished on Ohio 41-N, 200 feet south of Prairie Road when the vehicle traveled left of center and off the left side of the road, striking a fence belonging to Allen Rose, 2758 Ohio 41-N.

Ging was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital, treated for a laceration on the right side of the face and then released. Sheriff's deputies charged him with driving while intoxicated.

12:01 a.m. — A car driven by John M. Perry, 18, Jeffersonville, was demolished when it failed to negotiate a left curve on Parrott-Station Road, four-tenths of a mile west of Ohio 41-N, and traveled off the left side of the

Two larceny cases probed

Two incidents of larceny and an incident of vandalism were reported by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department today. Washington C. H. police investigated one incident of vandalism.

A socket set, a screwdriver and several assorted wrenches were stolen from a car owned by Sandy Patterson, sometime between 6 p.m. Saturday and 10 a.m. Sunday, while the auto was parked in the driveway of her New Holland residence, sheriff's deputies reported.

Sheriff's deputies received a report Monday that a can of spaghetti, pears, a bottle of fabric softener and four pies, were stolen from Clonson's Market in Good Hope Feb. 15.

A trailer belonging to Jordan Ritenour, Bloomingburg, was scratched sometime Sunday evening.

A car owned by Dennis G. Watson was also scratched with a sharp object along the full length of its left side sometime Saturday afternoon while parked in front of Watson's 236 Carolyn Rd. residence.

Washington C. H. police reported this was the third such incident during the past two months.

roadway, striking a Dayton Power and Light Co. utility pole, spinning around and then flipping over on its top in the ditch. Perry was uninjured.

7:40 a.m. — A car driven by Diane E. Polk, 17, of 2848 Ohio Rt. 753 was severely damaged when struck in the rear by an unidentified driver as she slowed for the railroad tracks on Ohio Rt. 753, three-tenths of a mile south of U.S. 35. Sheriff's deputies reported that after the collision, the hitskip driver simply drove off. Miss Polk was not hurt.

MONDAY, 5:15 p.m. — A car driven by Richard R. Pfeifer, 44, of 165 Magnolia Place, struck a highway sign at the intersection of U.S. 35 and the Ohio 41 exit ramp.

Sheriff's deputies reported Pfeifer's auto traveled off the left side of the exit ramp.

1:15 p.m. — A car driven by Faith E. Williams, 30, of 325 Sixth St., failed to stop after turning into a private driveway at Washington Manor Court and struck a storage shed and awning support belonging to Naomi Mossbarger, Lot 103. The impact pushed the shed into Ms. Mossbarger's trailer and damage was estimated as moderate; slight to the auto.

10:50 a.m. — A collie belonging to Carol Holloway, Rt. 4, was struck and Drug possession charge lodged

A 19-year-old Washington C. H. man has been arrested by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department and charged with possession of marijuana and improper left turn.

Sheriff Donald L. Thompson stated Larry W. Howell, 913 Lakeview Ave., was stopped by Sheriff's Sgt. William Crooks and Deputy David Souther on Willard Street after making the improper turn and marijuana was found within the vehicle.

Howell is presently incarcerated in the county jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Mayor Daley faces challenge

CHICAGO (AP) — Richard J. Daley, facing his first primary election challenge in 20 years today, likened himself to the prophet Abraham as Chicago voters prepared to choose a Democratic mayoral candidate.

As campaigning came to a close Monday, some candidates and officials warned that attempted vote fraud could reach serious proportions.

"Indications are that this could be a very rough election and we expect an all-out effort to win, which could mean an all-out effort to cheat," said Ralph Berkowitz, first assistant state's attorney.

Daley, 72, is expected to win and proceed to a sixth term, but he faces a strong challenge from City Council member William Singer. Other candidates are Edward V. Hanrahan, a former protégé of the mayor, and state Sen. Richard Newhouse, a black liberal.

At a rally Monday, Daley replied in Old Testament terms to charges that he is too old for the job.

"The Lord told Abraham, along with Lot, that he should go forth, that he should lead his people in a new nation," Daley said. "When the Lord called Abraham, Abraham was 75."

Of the challengers, only Singer, 34, is conceded a chance of upsetting Daley. But the total of Hanrahan and Newhouse votes could have an effect on the outcome.

Singer forces fought Daley's traditional army of precinct workers with a modern media campaign relying heavily on television. They say 750,000 to 800,000 persons must vote to give their man a chance against the core of votes controlled through the mayor's political patronage network. Registration is just over 1.5 million.

Hanrahan, 53, a former prosecutor and a favorite of law and order voters, could cut into Daley's support among middleclass ethnics.

Newhouse, 51, like Singer a champion of liberal voters, is short of money and has run without benefit of television spots. Political analysts agree that he will do poorly but will hurt Singer.

Daley told his workers to forget about charges in the city's three major daily newspapers that his great achievements are behind him and that his administration is laced with corruption.

"I don't care about the newspapers," the mayor said. "As long as I have the people, the hell with them. Thank God we have a great city and no matter what the hell they say we'll have a great city."

The Chicago Sun-Times and Daily News, Field Enterprises newspapers that often have supported Daley, endorsed Singer. The Chicago Tribune, usually a Daley backer, offered no endorsement.

Youth tries simple life finds it's not all bad

WENATCHEE, Wash. (AP) — Chester Robson wanted to see how St. Francis, the gentle monk who founded the Franciscan Order in 1208, might fare in today's society.

To find out, the 19-year-old Wenatchee Valley College freshman from East Wenatchee adopted the saint's simple lifestyle.

He begged for his food, washed with melted snow, slept on a pallet at a church, walked wherever he went and read by candlelight. His clothing was a brown robe tied with a sash.

"The first day, I was down," Robson said. "The way we normally live is directed toward comfort. To give up comfort is hard on the body. It would be good for everybody to give up things for a while. You learn that you don't need everything."

Robson said he faced a jungle of stares during the first day of his experiment last week.

He said a policeman stopped him and asked where he was going. When Robson replied that he was headed for a church, the officer said, "Oh. You're one of those."

Robson said, "If people don't know what you're doing, when you approach them they are kind of anxious. It's really the same as in Francis' day. Before people knew what he was doing they were against him. They felt he was a heretic."

Robson said his desire to gain an insight into the Franciscan way of life stemmed from a course entitled "Western Civilization," and meetings last fall with members of an Anglican Franciscan Society during a trip to Brisbane, Australia.

"I was just a nobody. Then personalized checks entered my life."

"Yes sir, that's right sports fans. Those personalized checks made my name famous. No matter where I went people started to treat me real important. That's when I decided to become a billionaire so as not to let them down. And I can thank my Huntington All-In-One Account. For just $2 a month, I get an entire bankful of services. Personalized checks is just one of them. You know, I like my name so much now that I even monogrammed my cereal bowl. Huntington Bank, member FDIC."
